

Promoting wellness at home

The healthcare community is urging all Canadians to practice physical distancing in order to slow the spread of COVID-19. We want to support these efforts by offering our Pharmacist consultation services to the public for free.

Who we are

HumanisRx® is an organization of licensed, experienced pharmacists dedicated to helping Canadians feel their best. Our MedCheckUp program provides medication support over the phone to Canadians who have unique or complex medication needs. We help individuals get the most benefit from their medications so they get the most out of life.

We want to help you practice physical distancing by extending our tele-services to the public. In the interest of public safety, we're offering this service free of charge, no insurance plan or payment required.

Through a one-on-one phone consultation, our Pharmacists will review the medications you're taking and check in on how you're feeling. They'll answer your questions and offer recommendations - all at no cost to you. This service takes some of the weight off community pharmacies, who are working with an added workload related to COVID-19. We are not a replacement for your regular pharmacist as we don't dispense medications, but we do dispense helpful advice.

The HumanisRx Consulting Pharmacist helps you:

- Understand and track your prescription and over-the-counter medications
- Manage medications for the best effect
- Remember to take your medications
- Manage any side effects you're experiencing
- Answer your medication questions
